

YOU'RE IN TROUBLE

by Bill Harley

When he got home he walked into the kitchen
So hungry that his stomach hurt There were cookies on the table, sign that read
"Don't touch, these are for dessert"
But he ate one,
and then he ate another He meant to put the rest away
But it wasn't too long before the cookies were gone He heard a little voice inside him say

CHORUS

You're in trouble, you're in trouble, you're in trouble like you've never been in trouble before
When they find out, there is no doubt You're in trouble like you've never been in trouble before

Well he'd never made cookies but he thought that he could do it He'd seen his mother do it before Some flour and some sugar there was really nothin' to it
'Til he dropped the sugar jar on the floor
He took some eggs and chocolate and mixed it all together
He poured the goop onto the tray His sister came in, she broke into a grin
And this is what he heard her say

Discussion:

- 1) Tell about a time you got into trouble. What did you learn from the experience?
- 2) Did your parents ever get in trouble when they were kids? What happened?

Creative Writing/Storytelling:

Make up a "trouble" story.

He turned the oven on and he put the cookies in He went to take a walk outside He let them cook an hour, he walked back up the stairs He pulled the door open wide Smoke came pouring out, the smoke alarm was screaming
The fire truck roared down the street His neighbor came over with her dog named Rover And said in a voice so sweet

CHORUS

When his parents came home, they hit the roof
They didn't think that it was funny at all Blah, blah, blah, blah, blah
He was stuck inside all weekend Just cleaning out the oven and washing down the kitchen walls He always will remember, he never will forget Whenever something seems to go wrong There's always someone there to tell you, someone there to yell at you, someone there to sing you this song
